Attribution

While the 68kMLA Wiki does not strive to be encyclopedic in the way that Wikipedia does, proper attribution of information sources makes it a more useful resource. Please cite and properly reference your sources!

Conversely, the 68kMLA Wiki is not about any one particular editor. Your contributions to the Macintosh community are always appreciated, but do not draw attention to yourself in the articles you write by signing them or through other means. Your edits are tracked through the page history, so anyone interested in your contributions is able to find them.
